OUR "REALPOLITIK."

Commenting on the Kaiser's visit to England the "Tribune" says:—

Were it only for its personal interest the visit is an event which must attract public attention in a very exceptional measure, and must excite a new volume of speculation as to the parts which the German and British Sovereigns have played, and will still play, in the life of their communities and the world at large. They are clearly marked and, in some ways, highly contrasted individualities, and yet the popularity of each among his own people rests largely in the fact that they exhibit some of the most characteristic traits of the two nations. King Edward, with his good nature and common sense, his business like and sportmanly spirit; his regard for constitutional limits and the progressive tendency of his time, and even in his discovery, at the moment when the British monarchy appeared to have entered into a passive and decorative phase, of new possibilities in international diplomacy, is one of the most typical of Englishmen. The Kaiser has some more brilliant gifts, and standing amidst a community the agrarian and industrial extremes of which are even further removed than they are with us, it is not surprising that he should sometimes appear as an almost medieval figure, and at other times as aggressively modern in ambition and sentiment. He never speaks of acts or moves about under the public eye, however, without illustrating the ludicrous fallacy of that picture which certain British Teutophobes have lately placed before us, in which Germany is represented as the Moloch of the modern world, a unanimous and compact body, materialistic to the core, and harbouring ideals only of universal conquest. In the versatile personality of the Emperor are gathered up many of the exceedingly diverse notes of local character very incompletely unified in the German Empire. This is no man of Blood and Iron, of the Bismarckian cast; and if there is much in him of Prussian conservatism, and of that faith in force which is the evil fruit of the war of Unity, there is also much of unquestionably sincere moral sentiment and idealism. There is no question—and this a matter of the importance of which recent events remind us—of the integrity of his personal and family life; and there is equally no question of his devotion to the welfare of his people as he conceives it. The two peoples have lost much in the recent past by something like an estrangement of the two Courts. If the meeting of the King and Kaiser meant nothing more than an end to this period of coldness, it would mean much. Of course, it means a great deal more—how much will depend upon the Kaiser's appreciation of his own powers and the possibilities of the future, but a great deal in any case. It is to be hoped that it may complete that movement of friendship which commenced simultaneously in Germany and England two years ago by the Anglo-German Conciliation Committee, and carried forward by the visits of British editors to Germany and German editors to this country, received official sanction in the messages of leading statesmen on either side, and in the meeting of the two Sovereigns at Wilhelmshöhe on Aug. 14th last. This is in itself a great result for the friends of international peace to have won in so short a time. The suppressed feud between the two Empires has produced absolutely no good result; it has, on the other hand, added enormously to the burdens which each people has to bear, and has kept alive a spirit of distrust and alarm which has injured them both. Henceforward it should be an axiom on both sides that, whatever small cliques of mischiefmakers may say, the responsible statesmen of both countries intend not only to maintain, but to develop, the friendly understanding that now happily obtains. We may go further, and express the hope that this visit implies, on the part of the Kaiser and his Government, a recognition of that part of British foreign policy which, often misrepresented in an aggressive sense at home, has still more often been misunderstood as minatory in Germany. It has been so long the custom to regard, and it still suits the purposes of so many reactionaries to represent, a peace policy as alternately sentimental and mischief-making that these misunderstandings do not greatly surprise us. The fiery birth of the German Empire is still a dominant memory. But events move fast nowadays; and the German no more than any other progressive people can afford to lag behind in the development which is as characteristic and important as the application of a new motive power in manufacture, or the periodical revision of scientific text-books. There is a "realpolitik" of peace, as well as of war, of Democracy as well as of Empire. The idea of a League of Peace, which the Prime Minister has explained, and of which King Edward has been the most efficient diplomatic agent, is neither the sentimental vision which English Tories have sometimes represented it to be, nor the anti-German conspiracy which Herr Bassermann and his fellow-Bismarckians imagine. It is a perfectly honest business programme. It is a natural statement of British interests, the interests of a country largely dependent on overseas trade, and therefore desirous of nothing so much as permanent peace and a cheaper security than is given by ever-increasing armaments. But these interests are also the interests of every modern industrial State. We have not forced France and Spain, Russia and Japan, into the compact we have made with them. Those compacts exist and can continue only by virtue of mutual material advantage. Is Germany, then, some prodigious exception in the field of economic law? Can she afford to continue to go about in her workshops and laboratories clad in feudal armour, while competing States, not lacking in power and determination, are bargaining together for the mutual insurance of their capital and labour? We do not believe it. And it is because the Kaiser has given abundant proof of mental vigour and imagination, that we cannot suppose him wishful to stand aside when a change so immense and beneficent is in question.

BULLETIN DE LA BOURSE

(Aujourd'hui à midi)

Comme nous le faisons entrevoir dans notre chronique financière de samedi, la tendance a été ce matin d'une lourdeur caractéristique. Et ce n'était pas un de ces marchés indécis où les avis sont partagés, non, tout le monde était d'accord pour reconnaître que les offres abondent et que les acheteurs sont rares. En un mot, nombre de détenteurs actuels sont si désireux de s'alléger de tout ou partie de leur stock qu'ils consentiraient volontiers des réductions de prix, mais les demandes ayant fait défaut, la baisse n'a pas été trop prononcée. On attribue la mauvaise humeur de la place à la hausse du taux privé à 7%, à l'augmentation du taux d'intérêt local et à l'éloignement croissant que témoignent l'épargne et le capital pour des valeurs qui ne lui ont donné depuis quelque temps que des déceptions.

En résumé, la matinée a été nulle comme affaires et la cote a subi une dépression presque générale sur les valeurs abordées. Au surplus, la tendance est franchement mauvaise. Contrairement aux jours précédents, la spéculation n'a pas manipulé de titres de façon particulière, et cela faute d'acheteurs.

Parmi les valeurs dirigeantes, l'Agricole fléchit de 7 7/8 à 7 25/32, la National Bank de 20 5/16 à 19 3/4, les Dividendes Tramways d'Alexandrie de 270 à 265, la Daira de 12 1/2 à 12 3/8, la Behéra de 21 1/4 à 20 1/2 et l'obligation Crédit Foncier de 289 à 288 l'ancienne et de 254 à 253 la nouvelle.

En baisse également la Land Bank de 7 à 6 15/16, l'Urbaine de 3 1/16 à 3, l'Union Foncière de 4 9/16 à 4 1/2, le Crédit Franco-Egyptien de 4 1/16 à 4 et la Banque d'Orient de 112 à 111 1/2.

Dans la catégorie des petites valeurs la Cassa di Sconto rétrograde de 45 1/2 à 43, la Delta Land de 1 3/8 à 1 1/4, les Sucreries de 33 à 32 fr., l'Ordinary Khedivial Mail de 20 5/8 à 20, les Estates de 7 1/16 à 7 1/32, le Comptoir de 2 17/32 à 2 3/8 l'action et de 1 1/2 à 1 1/16 la part de fondateur, l'Aboukir de 25 3/4 à 25, le Levant de 17 3/2 à 17, l'Unité de 1/4 à 7/32 l'action et de 1/4 à 3/4 la fondation, l'action Zaffra de 3 à 2 7/8.

Il n'y a en reprise que les Dividendes Bière du Caire de 25 à 26 francs et la Banque d'Athènes de 107 1/2 à 108. Sur le reste de la cote il n'y a pas de changement à signaler.

Nous voudrions bien pouvoir donner l'espoir d'une reprise prochaine; malheureusement les circonstances actuelles sont défavorables. De plus, nous allons rentrer dans la saison des inventaires, qui n'est généralement pas favorable au marché des valeurs. Cependant, les porteurs de bonnes valeurs locales ne doivent pas perdre leur sang froid. La cote est maintenant au moins en proche d'un niveau avantageux de capitalisation. Ce niveau atteint, une réaction est inévitable.

RISE OF EGYPT AS A WINTER RESORT.

(From "The Tribune").

The recent fogs have served to remind us that the time has come when people of means and leisure are beginning to make their way to sunnier lands. The Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, who are on their way at the present moment to Egypt, via Marseilles, are this year among the earliest of these birds of passage. The rush, however, will not begin until Nov. 1st.

A representative of "The Tribune" had a chat yesterday with Mr. Bredall, the secretary to Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son (Limited). "I expect," said that gentleman, "that the present season will be the busiest on record. The traffic between England and Egypt has grown enormously in recent years, and is still growing. This is largely owing, of course, to the fact that Egypt is under British rule, because under that rule the country has made surprising progress in civilization. An official report just published shows this most conclusively. In it is given a comparison of revenue, trade, etc., as it was in 1884 when Lord Cromer accepted office, and as it is at the present moment. Here are some of the salient figures:—

Revenue .. .	£ 9,427,706	£15,600,000
Expenditure ..	10,143,446	13,338,541
Imports .. .	10,810,984	33,949,792
Exports .. .	13,409,594	27,645,436
Railways (receipts) ..	1,330,333	3,342,483
Letters carried ..	11,206,000	58,800,000

"You will see that the revenue has not only been nearly doubled, but that a deficit has been turned into a large surplus, and that the imports have more than trebled while exports have more than doubled. But the most striking figures are those of the Post Office. These are largely accounted for, of course, by the increased volume of trade, but anyone who knows the country knows that the spread of education has had much to do with it."

REMARKABLE DEVELOPMENTS.

It is thirty-seven years since Messrs. Cook began their Nile River service. It had modest beginnings, a few old-fashioned wooden boats hired from the Governor being employed in it. Now they have eight tourist boats, four express boats, six steam dahabeahs, thirteen sailing dahabeahs, and six launches, all fitted up in the most luxurious manner. The latest addition to their fleet is the "Egypt," with bath-rooms on every deck, and large observation windows.

In fact in these days a journey to Assuan or even to Khartoum is as easy and comfortable as a trip, say, to Nice or Mentone. The service from England has been greatly accelerated. At present one goes from London to Cairo in about five days, but with the beginning of December this will be reduced to four days. With the growth of the tourist traffic Cairo has become a place of greatly increased importance. Formerly English visitors had no choice but to go to Shepherd's Hotel. Now, always palatial hotels have sprung up on all hands. It is a well-known fact that large sums of money have been made there by speculators in land who have sold at immense profits within a year or two.

As regards the tourist traffic to the Riviera, here also there has been an immense increase, which still continues. "People are constantly finding out new places," said Mr. Bredall. "The result is that we are asked daily for tickets to little towns which not long ago hardly anyone had ever heard of. For a rising place, however, one thing is indispensable—it must have good hotel accommodation. A large and well appointed hotel is often the making of a pleasure or health resort. The traffic to Algeria does not show any marked tendency to increase. I speak, of course, of English tourists. That country, it is well known, is largely patronized by French pleasure seekers."

MINING.

EGYPTIAN MINES EXPLORATION.

The sixth annual general meeting of the Egyptian Mines Exploration Company, Limited, was held, under the presidency of Mr. Tyndale White, who said that they had delayed holding their meeting, which in former years had taken place in March or April, in the hope that there would be a favourable turn in the markets which would enable them to come before the shareholders with a scheme for providing the necessary funds to carry on the work without having recourse to a reconstruction. He regretted to say that this, unfortunately, had not been the case, and they had now reached a point in the history of the company when it was absolutely essential that further funds should be provided if they were to continue their work. Accordingly a scheme of reconstruction had been evolved which provided for the formation of a new company to be called the Egyptian Mines Development Company, Limited, with a capital of £60,000 in 5s. shares. These shares were to be credited with 1s. per share paid-up and a liability of 4s. per share. The present company was to go into voluntary liquidation, and the shares in the new company credited with 1s. paid were to be offered to the members of the old company at the rate of one new share for each share now held. He pointed out the advantages which had accrued to the company by an unexpected windfall in respect to two of the properties, which had reverted to the parent company after the expenditure of some £23,000 in developing them by the subsidiary companies which had been unable to continue operations. It might, he said, be contended that the proposed cutting down of the capital was very severe, but his answer to that was that it did not interfere with the intrinsic value of the shares, because a share with 1s. paid up was quite as good as one with 16s. paid-up so far as the division of profits was concerned. The directors had done all in their power to cope with the difficult circumstances which they had had to face. The development of the present smaller scheme would be much the same as the original programme, and he anticipated that if the scheme were approved successful results would accrue. There could be no doubt as to the existence of valuable gold in the properties at depth. He commended the scheme to their acceptance, and said that unless they supported it it would be impossible to continue work or even to retain their property. He moved the adoption of the report.

Sir Henry Bunbury seconded the motion. Mr. C. J. Alford (the superintending engineer) then made a lengthy statement in regard to their prospects. He said that if the scheme were carried he felt there was a successful future before the company. The report was adopted and the scheme approved.

RHEUMATISM REMEDIED.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS AGAIN TRIED WITH SUCCESS.

If you have but slight rheumatic pains now, you will in all probability be wracked with pain towards the end of the autumn and in the winter. The best time to remedy rheumatism is in the warm season and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best treatment. These pills stimulate the working of all eliminating organs—the liver the kidneys, and the intestines—and make for the expulsion of all poisons and impurities. It is a well-known fact that rheumatic pains are due to the deposit of poisons, and the fever engendered by these poisons.

M. Louis Collignon, a signalman, 138, Rue Nationale, Gravelle, Ste. Honorine, Havre, has given these pills a conclusive trial.

"For a long time," he writes, "I had pains in my joints which gave me serious trouble in my work; moreover, my general condition left much to be desired. I had scarcely any appetite, and after each meal suffered from severe indigestion. I became anemic, lost my strength, and suffered from pains in the side and depression. I had tried several treatments without success, and was finally advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills did me excellent service, driving away all my pains and completely setting me on my legs again."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a sovereign cure for anemia, chlorosis, neurasthenia, general weakness, stomach ills, sick headaches, general breakdown, and neuralgia.

Sold by all chemists and druggists at P.T. 18 the box and P.T. 70 for six boxes.

n'hésitez pas à se purger, quand elles ont été bécotées. Elles ne craignent ni le dégoût ni la fatigue, parce que, à l'opposé des autres purgatifs, celui-ci n'opère rien que lorsque l'est pris avec de bons aliments et des boissons fortifiantes, telles que vin, café, etc. Chacune choisit pour se purger, l'heure et le repas qui lui conviennent le mieux, selon ses occupations. La fatigue de la purgation étant annulée par l'effet de la bonne alimentation, on se décide aisément à recommencer suivant de suite que cela est nécessaire.
